

Celebrating Miami's Jazz Heritage

July 16, 2009
Media Release

Miami Jazz Museum Seeking Some Jazzy Volunteers

(Miami, FL) WOW!...Can you imagine a museum in Miami Florida totally dedicated to Jazz, America's artform? Sounds exciting! There is a wonderful story rooted in the Jazz tradition that is part of this city's history and is waiting to be told.

Are you passionate about Jazz? MJM is looking for a few hard-working Jazzy volunteers. Join the MJM ground-breaking initiative that will celebrate Miami's Jazz heritage. Contact Bobby Ramirez, info@miamijazzmuseum.org or 305-298-2380.

The mission of the Miami Jazz Museum is to document the rich history of Miami's jazz heritage and its influence on the musical art form, from its early 20th century origins to its modern-day variations.

The Miami Jazz Museum will promote and preserve the multicultural legacy of the city and its surrounding areas through archives, recordings, audio/visual experiences, artifacts, permanent and traveling exhibits, interactive arts education programs, live musical performances and special events.

In presenting unique programs for children and adults, the Miami Jazz Museum will also create complementary partnerships with established arts organizations and jazz ensembles in South Florida that will enhance the community's cultural offerings for residents and tourists. More info at: www.miamijazzmuseum.org